

About ACS

The Association of Cambridge Studies (ACS) is a registered society at the University of Cambridge. The majority of its members are students and scholars of the University of Cambridge. ACS is an academic/cultral society. Its aims are to promote better understanding of the culture, history, teaching, research, and management systems of the University of Cambridge; and to promote better China-UK educational and cultural exchange. More details about ACS can be found in its Constitution . Our Vision
